

INTERESTED IN BECOMING A PASS LEADER?

What is PASS?

The Peer Assisted Study Sessions (PASS) Program offers regularly scheduled review sessions in several historically difficult courses at UAH. PASS provides an active learning environment in which students can work together to better understand course content and develop stronger study skills. Sessions are facilitated by PASS leaders, current students who have previously done well in the course and have been trained to make sure students get the most out of each session.

UAH STUDENTS TALK ABOUT PASS:

"My PASS leaders were more than just leaders; they were coaches. I really appreciated their encouragement."

"PASS is fun and incredibly helpful."

"My PASS leader was the best! I could not have made it through my class without her help."

What does a PASS leader do?

PASS leaders attend a course and facilitate group study sessions outside of class to review and reinforce course content and study strategies. They are also expected to create and submit session plans each week, attend monthly training workshops, maintain regular contact with their faculty member and students, communicate with program supervisors, participate in SSC-wide events, and maintain accurate records in our software system. PASS leaders work an average of 8-9 hours per week.

How much are PASS leaders paid?

PASS leaders earn between $10-12/hour, depending upon length of time with the program.
