The Department

The Department of Education collaborates with the College of Liberal Arts and the College of Science and local schools to offer exciting undergraduate and graduate teacher preparation programs. Teacher candidate experiences include both campus-based coursework and many opportunities to observe, assist, and teach in diverse public school settings in the Huntsville-Madison County areas.

We partner with several local schools to provide teacher candidates with unique opportunities in specialized programs for English Language Learners, Special Education students, and Title One students.

Faculty members are actively engaged in creating professional development activities for teachers and administrators and innovative learning opportunities for K-12 students. Faculty are engaged in cutting edge research in several areas including science education, learning styles, collaborative teaching, children's literacy, methods for teaching English language learners, and educational policy.

Admission to the teacher education program is competitive. Students are encouraged to contact the Education Department during their freshman and sophomore years to be assigned an advisor.

Student Organizations

The UAH Department of Education provides many opportunities for students to participate in service and professional learning activities. The department's award winning Student Alabama Education Association (SAEA) is a pre-professional organization open to any student interested in learning about and preparing themselves for the teaching profession. The UAH student chapter of the Council for Exceptional Children (CEC) continues to work with area teachers to improve the educational opportunities for children with diverse learning needs. Member activities include participation in the Autism Walk, leading the Madison City Schools Spring Fling activity, and attending national conventions in Nashville, TN and Baltimore, MD. Education students who demonstrate strong leadership and scholarship are eligible for induction into the UAH chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, an international education honor society.
