The New Academic Hybrid: Creating a Mixed-Use Campus Community

October 1st, 2016

Kent State – College Town

The new office, retail, entertainment and residential spaces under construction are seen here as essential ingredients in a civic formula for attracting students and educated professionals, defining spending habits and rebranding Kent as a flourishing 21st-century college town. — THE NEW YORK TIMES | KEITH SCHNEIDER

Q2 Do you live on campus?

Answered: 1,742 Skipped: 0

Q5 Today, how do you get around ON CAMPUS? (Choose all that apply)

Answered: 1,584 Skipped: 158

2. Fast Casual: Students want fast casual restaurants and see them as fresh, healthy options. There is an aversion to basic fast food establishments and an expected level of burnout with on-campus options.

3. Table Service: The faculty and staff wish to see a sit-down restaurant that feels like part of the campus culture where they can take longer lunches with peers, guests, clients, and job candidates.

4. Early Mornings and Late Nights: Students, faculty, and staff all want a unique coffee shop that feels like their own, while students see a immense need for 24-hour food service.

6. Essential Products and Service:

Students, faculty, and staff are seeking basic products/services, such as a health clinic, grocery, pharmacy, and post office, as opposed to lifestyle/trendy options like a clothing store, salon, or bike shop.

7. Event Space: Students, faculty, and staff all speak of an unmet need for on-campus event space, for get-togethers large and small, formal and informal.

8. Urban Setting: All respondents wanted to spend time in a lively, walkable area with a “downtown vibe” and a “college town energy.”

9. Great Public Realm: Students, faculty, and staff would like a vibrant public park and wide, inviting sidewalks in the district.

10. Dense Community: Students want to live in stacked apartments with a sense of community and seem to welcome the idea of the district being home to Huntsville’s young professional crowd.

11. Not Just Students: 44% of the faculty and staff said they would consider living in the district if their housing standards were met, as they would like a walkable community near campus.

12. Small, Flexible Units: Students would prefer small, cheap units in which they can either live alone or with one roommate. There is a need for other non-traditional housing (married, family, pet-friendly).

13. A Place to Call Home: Students see this district as a place that they would live multiple years during their college experience.

14. Student Services: The faculty and staff sense that there are a number of student services that might be more welcoming or better utilized if located within the district.

15. Going Green: Students, faculty, and staff all see environmental responsibility as extremely important for UAH.
